and the new and improved vegetation. A few species of the old flora still remain, though they are right at odds with the new flora which is the dominant. The former is a scrubby woodland of rather old trees, the latter an open, more or less grassy, scrubby area. The scrubby area is still common, and does not seem to increase in extent, while the grassy area seems to increase.
There may be a few reasons for this, but one possibility is that the old growth is being cleared and replaced by the new growth.

Overall, most of the area is now in a relatively degraded condition, with the exception of a few areas of old scrubby woodland. The new growth is more common than the old growth, and appears to be increasing in extent. This suggests that the area is undergoing a process of ecological change, possibly due to human activity or natural processes.

THIS IS A FINE CHRISTMAS PRESENT

The Shapleigh Special Electric Sad Iron can be quickly attached to any electric lamp socket and heated in from two to three minutes. It consumes less current than any other iron of the same weight. It will not get out of order and is fool-proof.

No. 500—Full nickel plated, complete with seven feet of cord and stand, each..... $5.00

WHY BE SEEDY

In appearance, when with the use of one of these electric sad irons and a few moments' work you can press your trousers or your skirt. In these days no man can do his best work unless he has a clean shave and carefully pressed trousers. Baggy trousers and mussed skirts always suggest carelessness and indifference. An electric sad iron will make a useful, hence an attractive, present.

and elegant in the appearance of a set of scissors in a red leather case. The bright shine of the scissors and the color of the leather seem to set each other off. I scarcely know of a Christmas present that could be more refined and useful than a set of these scissors.

IN THESE DAYS

when there are so many automobile highwaymen it is a good thing to have a little Colt automatic handy in one's pocket. Were you ever held up? If you were, I am sure you didn't mind the loss of your money and valuables as much as you did the helpless feeling of having some stranger make you stand in the road with both of your hands reaching heavenward. Somehow, it is a reflection on one's manhood to be caught in this way. Now a little Colt automatic might not only save your property, but also lead you to retain your self respect.

GIVE YOUR BOY AN AUTOMOBILE

Not a Gasoline Car but the Foot Propelling kind. It will make him healthy and develop his muscles. This car is strongly made and well braced; the gear, braces and wheels are made of wrought steel. for those who are still in the wagon class, but there are a few children who have reached the automobile stage. They don't want iron wagons—they want real automobiles. So here you are. ## BOYS, YOU HAVE A KICK COMING Unless Santa remembers you with a Diamond Brand Rugby Foot Ball. The case of this Foot Ball is made of good quality Pebble Calf Leather. The Bladder is made of Pure Gum Rubber. If he don't know that the "Diamond" is the best kind write him a letter and tell him so.

THE BOYS OF TO-DAY

are the men of to-morrow. Boys with strong lungs and muscles of steel make good men. There is no training like foot ball for the rough and tumble of life. We don't want our boys to be mollycoddles, because after a while when they go out into the world they will find that they will have to take part in many a stiff scrimmage. The sports of youth help make better men, not only in brawn and muscle, but in the mental attitude of taking and giving good hard knocks cheerfully and without any personal ill feeling.

OF COURSE WHEN OUR FOREFATHERS

first came to this country they used to wrap themselves up in blankets or quilts when they went to town in the old farm wagon. But there have been a good many fine crops since those days, and now you and I drive to town in a buggy and keep warm with one of these handsome lap robes. A lap robe would make a very serviceable and sensible Christmas present. It is nice to snuggle up on a cold day under a warm lap robe—Are you next, brother?

THERE WAS A TIME

when watches were made all by hand, and they were an expensive luxury. But in these days the very best watches are made by machinery. They are manufactured in enormous quantities and therefore are sold at a surprisingly low cost. With so many good cheap watches on the market it is simply a waste of money to buy the expensive kind. I have carried a cheap watch myself for ten years and it is still keeping splendid time and looks just as good as ever.

more sanely now than in the olden times, when we only knew how to wear red flannel underclothes. Say, brother, do you know that when you return home from the office all tired out the best thing for you to do is not to lounge in an easy chair, but to get your blood into circulation. ### ALL CHILDREN NATURALLY ARE SAVAGES:

They are just little animals. They must be civilized by training. There is no better way to train a child in correct table manners than by giving it a child's set, consisting of knife, fork and spoon, of its own and then carefully showing it how they should be used. ### WHY NOT BE COMFORTABLE?

Life is short at best, and cold feet are not only disagreeable, but they sometimes lead to pneumonia, and pneumonia leads elsewhere. Once upon a time I used to light a lantern and put it under the blanket when I took a long drive. But that method is old-fashioned and out-of-date compared with modern foot warmers. You remember the saying of the celebrated German doctor—"Keep your head cool, your bowels open and your feet warm." That is the secret of health.

The Origin and History of Christmas

Being an essay compiled from the Encyclopedia Britannica, Encyclopedia Americana and other similar authorities by

Mike Kinney

Teamster and Editor.

THIS is a Christmas Gimlet. I started out to write something more or less amusing on the subject of Christmas, but when I read up on this great Christian festival I learned so many things I did not know before—

"DIAMOND EDGE IS A QUALITY PLEDGE"

The Gimlet

so many interesting things, so many things I should have known long ago—that I decided that probably the thousands of readers of The Gimlet would like to have me tell them some of the things I have discovered about Christmas.

Before we start on Christmas I want to address just a few words to the NEW readers of The Gimlet. About 50,000 new names have been added to The Gimlet list in the past few weeks—customers of our customers—making the present circulation of this bibliograph, in round figures, 100,000. The Gimlet is written by an alleged teamster. The author of The Gimlet claims to be a teamster because for many years he has been a driver, a puller and a hauler. The Gimlet started in the form of "ginger" letters for hardware salesmen. Then, being in the line of evolution, it was mailed to hardware dealers. Now hundreds of hardware dealers are sending The Gimlet to thousands of their good friends and customers, one of which you may be whom.

Now, brothers and sisters, grown-ups and kids, just one word in getting acquainted. Don't take either me or my writings too seriously. If occasionally you happen to strike a new idea, pass it along. Just stop and think that if each of the present subscribers to The Gimlet would hand this booklet to one other person, then, instead of it being read by 100,000 persons, it would be read by 200,000 people in all walks of life.

I will tell you a secret. It is the real ambition of the author of The Gimlet to have his writings read once a month in little family gatherings. If five persons hear The Gimlet read once a month then I will be reaching 500,000 people with every issue. I am not trying to reform the world. I have no theories. The Gimlet is just a little instrument with a point, and its object is to amuse and inform.

"DIAMOND EDGE IS A QUALITY PLEDGE"

I never did like to explain. Explanations are always tiresome, and besides that, they never really explain. Therefore, suppose we just let The Gimlet and its author slide with these few feeble remarks. As you read The Gimlet from month to month perhaps we will become better acquainted. It has been well said that all literature is a confession, and possibly from my monthly confessions you will learn to know more of my own weaknesses than I know myself. At any rate, if you will read The Gimlet in your little family circle it will start discussions. Argument means thought, and to learn to think is the best education.

The Derivation of the word Christmas

The word "Christmas" comes from "Cristemasse," meaning Christ's mass or holy day. The French word for Christmas is "Noël;" the German is "Weihnachtsfest;" Old English and Scandinavian, "Yule," and Anglo-Saxon, "Geol."

The Gimlet

Christmas is a festival of the Christian church, observed annually on the 25th of December, in memory of the birth of Christ. The festival proper begins on the evening of the 24th day of December, called Christmas eve, and continues until Epiphany, on the 6th of January, the whole period being called Christmas-tide, but is more particularly observed on the 25th of December, which is called Christmas Day or simply Christmas. Its celebration was formerly forbidden by the Puritans, but it has been observed for ages by all Christian denominations. The giving of gifts at Christmas is one of the peculiarities of this great festival. In studying the subject I find that Christmas, like many of the other religious festivals, comes to us down through the ages from pagan festivals that antedate the Christian era.

Christmas is one of the most important festivals in history because it celebrates the birth of one who, by His life and teachings, changed the entire thought and philosophy of the world. Therefore, children, draw a little closer and we will cast our imaginations back to the conditions which existed on earth almost 2000 years ago, when Christ was born in a manger in Bethlehem in Judea.

The World when Christ was Born

Politically, the world was then passing through an epoch of disintegration and decadence. Rome under the Emperors, as she attained the zenith of her apparent power and splendor, was, in fact, sinking to the depths of degradation. The genius of Julius Caesar, the astute policy of Augustus, could not delay the ever-deepening degeneracy which revealed itself in its worst colors in the reign of Tiberius. The great god Pan was dead. The gods of Rome and Greece, that had ruled the minds of men for centuries, were no longer respected or worshiped. The earth had lost its ideals of artistic beauty and on all sides, with the rich and poor alike, there was nothing but gross materialism.

The historian, Tacitus, has described the times as being "rich in disasters; terrible in battles; rent by seditions; savage even in its peace."

Elsewhere we read, "The murder of princes, the outbreaks of rebellion and civil war, the prevalence of alarming rumors, the decimation of the noblest families by spies and informers, the conflagrations of temples and cities, the oppression of the provinces by the greed and cruelty of legates and procurators, the horrible degradation of private morals, the awful tragedies of impurity and bloodshed which were enacted in various courts, the multiplications of banishments, ever the terror of famines, storms and earthquakes, combined to render the early years of the Christian era a period of gloom and anguish."

The Ancient Beliefs had Lost their Hold

Meanwhile the Religious condition of the world was no less unsatisfactory. Throughout the Roman Empire the belief in the popular mythology had died away and, while a few of the noblest spirits took refuge in the hard and despairing dogmas of Stoicism, the mass of the people was plunged in practical Atheism or abject Superstition. Such religion as there was among the people usually took the form of Egyptian and Phrygian worships, which were often connected with the vilest immorality. In Judea the dominant religion consisted of scrupulous devotion to the petty external ordinances of the Oral law. Thus at the epoch of Christ's birth the Heathen world had sunk into practical Atheism and the Jewish world was deeply corroded by formalism and hypocrisy. In the heathen world religion had almost ceased to exist and in the Jewish world it was tainted at its source."

Such, children, was the condition of the world when Jesus was born.

The Name Jesus at first a Title

Now, let me quote from some of the things I have read of the gentle Galilean: "The word 'Jesus' is the form assumed in Latin by the Greek 'Iesous,' which is the transliterated form of the Hebrew 'Jehoshua,' 'Jeshua' or 'Joshua,' meaning 'Jehovah is salvation.' In one or other of its forms the name is found in many passages in the Old Testament.

"The word 'Christ' was not originally a name but a title. In the Gospels we scarcely ever read of 'Christ' but always of 'The Christ.' It was only after the Resurrection that the title gradually passed into a name and 'Jesus Christ,' or later still—'Christ Jesus,' became one designation. The Greek word means 'anointed,' and is a translation of the Hebrew 'Messiah.' The designation of 'The Christ' given to Jesus shows that His followers saw in Him the long promised Messiah of Judaism, and the rapidity with which the title developed into a name proves the strength and permanence of this conviction."

An Error as to the Year Christ was Born

As I read many books in studying up on the origin of Christmas, I was surprised to learn that the exact year of the nativity of Christ is not known. It seems that critics of all schools are verging more and more towards the acceptance of 4 B. C. as the probable year of Christ's birth. Our present era was fixed (525 A. D.) by a learned Scythian, Dionysius Exiguus, who was an abbot at Rome and died about 550. But now it seems that the good abbot made a mistake of at least four years.

The Gimlet

We are left with two data, which furnish us with an approximation to the accurate date of Christ's birth. One of these is the death of Herod the Great. Josephus tells us that he died thirty-seven years after he had been declared king by the Romans. Now, it has been figured out by contemporary historians that Herod died between 4 B. C. and 3 B. C. Further, we know that there was an eclipse of the moon on March 12th, 4 B. C., on which night Herod ordered some Jewish rabbis burnt, and that he was dead before the Passover, which took place on April 12th, 4 B. C. Christ must, therefore, have been born before February, 4 B. C. Again, St. Luke tells us that John the Baptist began to preach in the fifteenth year of Tiberius.

The Day and Month Unknown

As to the day and month of the Nativity, it is certain that they can never be recovered. They were absolutely unknown to the early fathers, and there is scarcely one month of the year which has not been fixed upon as probable by modern critics. The date now observed—December 25—cannot be traced further back than the middle of the fourth century. It was adopted by St. Jerome, St. Augustine and others.

The visit of the Magi is known as Epiphany or the manifestation of Christ to the Gentiles. It rests on the sole authority of St. Matthew, but there is no feature in his account which is out of keeping with known events and possibilities. The Magi—Persian or Chaldean astrologers—were a class extremely common at that epoch, and under different names were repeatedly mentioned by the contemporary historians and satirists.

"DIAMOND EDGE IS A QUALITY PLEDGE"

They were accustomed to wander to various countries and to interest themselves in horoscopes. That they should have been deeply interested in any sidereal phenomenon such as the Star of Bethlehem is in accordance with what we know of their studies. These were the Wise Men who were guided by the star to the manger of the Saviour.

Jesus was One of the Common People

The childhood and youth of Jesus was spent not only in the obscurity of a despised and provincial village, but also in the manual toils of an humble trade. As a carpenter He worked with His hands for His own support and that of His mother and brethren. All of us who have studied the life of the "Man of Sorrows" must have had our imaginations stirred by the deep silence of those long, unknown years in which He consecrated the common lot of toil and poverty and thereby showed the inherent dignity of manhood and the intrinsic sacredness of human life.

The Expectation of a Messiah

It was no doubt due to the darkness of the religious and political horizon, and to the sense of despair and weariness which was prevalent in the hearts alike of Jews and Gentiles, that the Messianic hope, fostered by generations of prophets, gained a powerful hold on the hearts of all sincere Israelites and even found its expression in secular literature. Virgil, Tacitus and Suetonius, no less than Josephus, showed that the thoughts of the civilized world were turned to the East in the expectation of some Great Deliverer, but the character of their hope was utterly mistaken.

The State of the Early Christians

So, children, when all of us are celebrating with our gifts to each other, with Christmas cards, with Christmas trees, with religious services, with lighted altars, sacred music and songs, with priests robed in glittering vestments, the birth of the Prince of Peace, we will better appreciate the miracle of the development of His beautiful ideals from the hopeless gloom of the pagan world if we will remember how the early Christians were hated and despised. Their beliefs at first were not understood. Their religion was considered one of the lowest of superstition. They were supposed to be either knaves or fools. No epithet was too contemptuous to be hurled at a Christian.

Secular Accounts of the Christians

Tacitus tells us that the founder of Christianity had been put to death in the reign of Tiberius, by Pontius Pilate, and that his religion, "a deadly superstition," though crushed for a time, burst forth again not only throughout Judea, in which it sprung up, but even in Rome, the common reservoir for all the streams of wickedness and infamy.

Nero diverted from himself the odium of the burning of Rome by charging the crime upon the Christians. Suetonius held the same opinions. He regarded Nero as a "public benefactor" because he punished the Christians, "a class of men of a strange and pestilent superstition."

The younger Pliny wrote the Emperor Trajan asking for advice on how to deal with Christians. He writes that "they live innocent lives and that he was unable to establish against them any crime beyond that of the belief," which, like his contemporaries, he regarded as a perverse and extravagant superstition.

Christmas not Celebrated till the Fourth Century

It is interesting to observe that Christmas was not celebrated in the first centuries of the Christian Church, as it was the Christian usage in general to celebrate the death of remarkable persons rather than their birth. The death of the martyr Stephen, and the massacre of the innocents at Bethlehem, had been already long celebrated. It was not until the Fourth Century that a feast was established in memory of the birth of the Saviour. In the fifth century the Western Church ordered it to be celebrated forever on the day of the old Roman feast of the death of Sol, though no certain knowledge of the day of Christ's birth existed. Among the German and Celtic tribes the winter solstice was considered an important point of the year and they held their chief festival of Yule to commemorate the return of the burning wheel.

"DIAMOND EDGE IS A QUALITY PLEDGE"

Our Inheritance from Pagan Times

As a matter of fact, the holly, the mistletoe, the Yule log and the wassail bowl relate more to paganism than to Christianity. But the Christmas tree has been traced back to the Romans. It went from Germany to Great Britain, and has become almost universal in the United States where the customs of so many nationalities meet and gradually blend in the melting pot of our own country.

The Observation of Christmas in England

In England it was the custom on Christmas eve, after the usual devotions were over, to light large candles and throw on the hearth a huge log called the Yule log or Christmas block. At

"DIAMOND EDGE IS A QUALITY PLEDGE"

Court and in the houses of the wealthy an officer, named the Lord of Misrule, was appointed to superintend the revels, and in Scotland a similar functionary used to be appointed under the title of the Abbot of Unreason, till the year 1555, when the office was abolished by Act of Parliament. The reign of the Lord of Misrule began on All Hallow eve and lasted until Candlemas Day. The favorite pastimes over which he presided were gaming, music, conjuring, dipping for nuts and apples, dancing, hot cockles, blind-man's buff, fool plough, etc., and various Christian preachers (as, for instance, St. Bernard) have remonstrated with their flocks for paying too great attention to the festive character of the season and too little attention to its more solemn aspects.

"DIAMOND EDGE IS A QUALITY PLEDGE"

The favorite dishes for breakfast and supper at this season were the boar's head, with an apple or orange in the mouth, and, set off with rosemary, plum pudding and mince pies. The houses and churches were decked with evergreens, especially with mistletoe, to which a traditional sacredness has attached since the days of the Druids.

Have you learned Something New about Christmas?

Thus ends my little article on the history of Christmas. Maybe some families will lay aside this booklet and read it Christmas night while the bright flames are crackling between the logs on the hearth and the cold winter wind is rattling the window panes. If you do read this Gimlet to your family on Christmas eve, I hope that as your children sit around the fire in a wide circle and watch the darting flames and the moving shadows, that they will think of all the other children 'way back through the long ages who celebrated this same feast of happiness and joy. I hope that they will not only think of the Christian children who have lived and died within the past 2000 years, but that they will let their thoughts wander back even beyond them, to the pagan children of Rome and Greece who celebrated this same festival, and that their thoughts will go back even still farther to the children of the wild tribes who lived deep in the forests, but who in the dead of winter also celebrated the day with fire and warmth, with laughter and gentle greetings and love and blessings. Because, dear children, you know that even from the beginning all of us come out of the darkness from the Great Father and Source of things and each one of us in his turn will go back to Him.

I want each and every one of you to feel that you are a part of the whole—of the ages that are past and of the ages that are to come. We who are living now stand as links binding the forgotten past to the unknown future. Did you ever think that looking backward into the past we are the oldest people in the world, but that looking forward into the future we are the youngest, because we are the last to have arrived on the scene? Through us the Christmas spirit of joy and love will pass on to our successors as we have received it from those who have gone before.

In the Hawaiian Islands they have a musical greeting, and the word is "Aloha." It means love and greetings to you. Then, when an Hawaiian wishes to make the greeting still stronger, he cries, "Aloha Nui," which means, the best of all love and greetings I give to you. Then they have a garland of flowers called the "lei," which they place around the necks of their friends.

So this little Gimlet bears to you Christmas Greetings. It brings love and blessings and good luck, and all kinds of wishes for your happiness and welfare.

It is not out of place that we who deal in tools should write of the Master who was a carpenter and worked with his hands.

A HYMN FOR CHRISTMAS DAY

Hark! how all the welkin rings,
Glory to the King of kings!
Peace on earth, and mercy mild,
God and sinners reconciled!
Joyful, all ye nations, rise,
Join the triumph of the skies;
Universal nature say,
Christ the Lord is born to-day.

Christ, by highest Heaven adored;
Christ, the Everlasting Lord;
Late in time behold Him come,
Offspring of a Virgin's womb;
Veil'd in flesh the Godhead see;
Hail, th' Incarnate Deity!
Pleased as man with men t' appear,
Jesus, our Immanuel here!

Hail! the heavenly Prince of Peace!
Hail! the Sun of Righteousness!
Light and life to all He brings,
Risen with healing in His wings.
Mild He lays His glory by,
Born that man no more may die,
Born to raise the sons of earth,
Born to give them second birth.

—Charles Wesley.

At Christmas I no more desire a rose
Than wish a snow in May's new-fangled mirth;
But like of each thing that in season grows.

"Shepherds, rejoice, lift up your eyes,
And send your fears away;
News from the region of the skies!
Salvation's born to-day.

"Jesus, the God whom angels fear,
Comes down to dwell with you;
To-day He makes His entrance here,
But not as monarchs do.

"No gold, nor purple swaddling-bands,
Nor royal shining things;
A manger for His cradle stands
And holds the King of kings.

"Go, shepherds, where the Infant lies,
And see His humble throne—
With tears of joy in all your eyes
Go, shepherds, kiss the Son."

Thus Gabriel sang: and straight around
The heavenly armies throng;
They tune their harps to lofty sound,
And thus conclude the song:

"Glory to God that reigns above,
Let peace surround the earth;
Mortals shall know their Maker's love,
At their Redeemer's birth."

Lord! and shall angels have their songs,
And men no tunes to raise?
O may we lose these useless tongues
When they forget to praise!

Glory to God that reigns above,
That pitied us forlorn!
We join to sing our Maker's love—
For there's a Saviour born.

Tales Told in a Hardware Store

"'Twas the Night Before Christmas"

JIT was Christmas eve in a hardware store. The owner of the business had carefully looked at the fastenings of the windows, barred the back door, and letting himself out of the front entrance he turned the key in the lock. Then he hurried home to help his better-half decorate the Christmas tree, fill the Christmas stockings, and after everything was done, to linger a little while with his good wife beside the fire talking over the many Christmas eves they had passed together.

Back of the counter in the store was a drawer in which worn out, defective and discarded hardware had been thrown. There were all sorts of articles in this drawer. No sooner had the merchant departed, than, strange to relate, all of these different items of hardware climbed out of the drawer and arranged themselves in a wide circle on the counter. They made all kinds of little noises as they moved about. There was the click of pocket knives and the ring of steel when one article happened to jostle another. You would scarcely believe it, my dear children, but these old battered tools laughed and talked just as human beings do, only they had a language all their own—a language that neither you nor I could understand. It seems that they had arranged to amuse each other on Christmas eve by telling stories, and, as my godmother happened to be a fairy, she repeated to me, so I could tell you in The Gimlet, just the stories that they told each other.

The Gimlet

After quite a little bustling about in getting themselves fixed, for all the world like a lot of children, an old battered Axe with a lot of nicks in his edge called on every one to be quiet. Then he turned to a pair of Bankers' Shears and said, "Will you tell us the first story?" These Bankers' Shears were long and slim, the blades must have been fully 12 inches in length. They showed that they had been used for many years and sharpened many times. With a little preliminary cough, the Bankers' Shears told his story as follows:

"Once upon a time, many years ago, when I was brand new, I was bought by a great merchant. He used to keep me lying on his desk. Sometimes he used me to cut coupons off his bonds, at other times to clip articles from the newspapers or magazines. So you see I was with him every working day and I heard a lot of things in his office that were very confidential. He didn't pay much attention to me lying there on his desk, but I listened closely to everything that was said, and, my! what a lot of stories I could tell about this merchant and his deals and all the people who came to see him. But, as this is Christmas eve, I am just going to tell you what happened one Christmas before I became too old and cranky and too loose in my joints to serve him any longer.

"This merchant was named Scraggs, and everybody thought he was an awfully tight-fisted old fellow. He used to drive many a hard bargain, and sometimes when he was in a hurry he was short and sharp in his talk. He always wanted to get everything done quickly and often in his haste he was not as kind and gentle as he might have been. But maybe that wasn't altogether his fault because he had a whole lot of things to do and, if he had allowed them, people would have consumed and wasted a great deal of his time. Everybody envied old Scraggs because they thought he had a lot of money. He lived in a fine house and had an automobile. The world called him successful.

"Well, on this Christmas eve all of his partners and all of the heads of departments of the business came into his office one by one, shook hands with him and wished him a Merry Christmas. Old Scraggs appeared to be in a very good humor, and he patted each one on the back, shook hands with him, and sent some word of greeting to his folks at home. Later on, when the big bell sounded the closing time, other employes came—men and women, girls and boys—and Scraggs wished each of them a Merry Christmas.

The Gimlet

"After a while all were gone, the big office was empty except for Scraggs. He sat looking out of the window. His hand was very near to me—so near that I could have touched it. Scraggs was a hard old man. His eyebrows were straight and fierce. His large mouth would sometimes close with a snap like a steel trap. There were deep lines in his face and I know they were the lines of battle—the lines that come from many a hard fight. After a few minutes Scraggs rose and walked up and down the office. Now and then he whistled to himself. When he whistled that tune I knew his thoughts were far away. How quiet it was in the big office! All had hurried home to their families. Almost everybody carried Christmas packages. Every one had a present for some one else. Nobody had given old Scraggs any presents because he did not need any; they knew how rich he was, and you know when people have lots of things it's not a good idea to give them anything, because they might laugh at your little offering.

"Scraggs had watched all the employes leaving with their bundles and packages. In a little while he sat down again at his desk, and taking out a bunch of keys he unlocked the lower drawer on the left-hand side. Out of this drawer he took a tin box and with another key unlocked this. 'I guess,' said I to myself, 'he is going to look at some of his stocks and bonds. It will do him good to see how rich he is.'

But, my dear, you will scarcely believe me when I tell you that when he opened the tin box he took out a small picture. It was the picture of a little girl. The photograph was yellow with age. Scraggs laid the picture on his desk right next to me, under the light, and for a long, long time he sat gazing at it. He was as quiet as though he were dead, he hardly breathed, and as I looked at him I saw that his face was drawn and that there were tears in his old eyes. At last he tenderly put the picture back in the tin box and locked it up again in his desk. He put on his overcoat and softly closed the door behind him as he left the store.

"I was on old Scraggs' desk for a number of years and every Christmas he did the same thing. Now, I say, wasn't that queer? I don't know, but I have often wondered who that little girl was. I guess after all Scraggs had his Christmas memories too."

When the Bankers' Shears had finished it was evident that his story had not made much of a hit, because there was so little to it—it wasn't a bit exciting. "What if old Scraggs did look at a faded photograph with tears in his eyes every Christmas eve! I guess he had a right to if he wanted to," remarked a pert Safety Razor with a twisted handle.

The Gimlet

"That story reminds me of another one," said a Pocket Knife with a worn stag handle, that once had four blades but two of them were now broken out. "I was once carried in the pocket of a merchant who was also the head of a great house. One day just before Christmas he was walking through the house when in one of the departments he noticed a gray-haired stenographer hard at work at her machine. He stopped and looked at her. Then he whispered to himself, 'By George, I believe it is she.' He went to the head of the department and inquired the name of this stenographer. The name evidently did not give him much information because she was a 'Mrs.' So he said to the head of the department, 'I wish you would make some excuse for asking Mrs. Wilson her name before she was married, and then come down to my office and tell me.' A little later the head of the department came down and said her name had been Annie Riggs. When the old man was alone he sat a long time at his desk thinking. He repeated to himself, 'Annie Riggs! Annie Riggs! Why, thirty years ago her father was one of the richest men in town and I used to be one of her beaux. What a pretty girl she was! I had lost all track of her. Yes, I did hear that she married and went west.'

"But why draw out the story? A lot of you are waiting to tell your stories and are more interested in your own stories than you are in mine. That night, without any warning, the old man again called her Annie Riggs. He had learned all about her and her children. His automobile was full of Christmas presents. You know I was right with him and it was funny to see the old man sitting in that little flat with gray-haired Annie Riggs arranging the Christmas gifts for the children. At first she was just a little afraid of him. You know poor people are the proudest people in the world, and she pretended not to like it a bit when he came with the flowers and the candy and all the toys for the children, besides a lot of good things to eat. But he just butted in, sat down and made himself at home, and told her that she had no right not to let him enjoy his Christmas in his own way even if she didn't like it."

"That story is all right," said a battered old Hammer, but "it's a bit sentimental, and I have had all the sentiment pounded out of me."

"Well, I had a more exciting experience than any of these," said a Pocket Cork Screw with a very sporty look. "I was once carried by a big handsome man who had a little wife. This man was quite a fellow with the ladies. They used to jolly him along and make him think that he was the 'whole cheese.' His little wife was one of the quiet, patient kind and she just stood for it without making any complaint. One summer I was in his pocket at the seashore, and he and one of his lady friends were doing the lovey-dovey act on the piazza of the hotel just outside of one of the windows. After the lady had given him a line of Cleopatra talk he told her that he was up against it in having a wife without any spirit. 'She hasn't a bit of courage,' said he, 'and, I tell you, life is mighty monotonous for me.' His lady friend sympathized with him a whole lot and told him that such a fine man as he was should have an entirely different wife. Of course they didn't know it, but I happened to see the big fellow's wife sitting in the parlor just inside of the window and she heard every word that they said. She didn't say anything, but just sat there sewing as if nothing had happened.

The Gimlet

"The next day I heard her ask her husband if he wouldn't like to take a sail, and with a manner as if he were making a great concession, he agreed to hire a boat and take her out. He could sail a boat all right and so they went alone. When they were about three miles from land the patient little wife looked up and said, 'John, I heard what you said to Lizzie on the piazza yesterday, and I think that you are quite right. I am not very lively and I am afraid that I often bore you. But, at the same time, my dear, it is only fair to say that sometimes you bore me. Of course I'm not as big and brave and courageous as you are, but if you will be happier without me, probably on the other hand I might be happier without you. So I have a little proposition to make, and it's just this: If this boat should upset and I should be drowned no one would ever know that it was not an accident. And of course if you should happen to be drowned and I should happen to be saved, that would be an accident too. Now, suppose we take two matches, one shorter than the other. I will hold them in my closed hand and let you take whichever you please. If you draw the long match then I will lose, and you can upset the boat and I will go down and never bother you any more. If you happen to draw the short match then you will be the one not to return to land.'

"Well, say, what do you suppose big, healthy, brave John did?" "What did he do?" all the tools cried out. "That's the point of the story," replied the Pocket Cork Screw. "I know, but I'm not going to tell. I'm just going to leave it this way, like that story of the Lady and the Tiger, where each one can finish the story to suit himself."

"That's not fair," said a pair of Embroidery Scissors that had one point broken off, "I don't like stories to end that way. The kind of stories I like are those in which the hero and heroine get married in the last chapter and live happily forever after."

"I don't like this story, either," said a Saw with a bent blade. "I never did like them or these problem plays that just stir people up without any good reason."

"By the way," remarked the Saw, "I once belonged to a carpenter who took up a subscription to the Pure Milk fund. After he had collected about $100.00 one of the contributors said that he had not seen any report of the collection in the papers. 'What did you do with the money you collected?' 'Oh, I used it all right for the proper purpose,' answered the carpenter, 'I bought a Jersey cow.'"

Here a Diamond Edge Plane with a broken handle, remarked, "It's pretty hard for some people, with good intentions, to get jobs. I once knew a polccat that went all around trying to get a position as a nice little housekeeper, but none of the other families would give her any encouragement."

The Gimlet

A No. 68 Rule crossed one leg over the other, and remarked, "This golf game is consuming entirely too much of the time of some of these hardware manufacturers and jobbers. They used to go to conventions, but instead of attending the sessions they don't do a thing but go out and play golf. They remind me of the story of the two Scotchmen. One said to the other, 'Sandy, will ye play golf in the morn?' Sandy, hesitated a moment and then answered, 'Yes, Andy.—I did intend to get married, but I will play with ye.'"

There was a dead silence after this joke. The No. 68 Rule wasn't very popular anyway, because he was always trying to measure everybody.

"By the way," remarked a rusty pair of Compasses, "have you ever noticed that you can push a pen, but that a pencil must be lead?"

"That joke is the limit," said a Folding Cup, as he collapsed and fell off the counter.

"Say," said a Level that had its spirit glass broken, "I heard a big manufacturer tell the other day how he got his start in life. It seems that about twenty-five years ago he was a traveling salesman and happened to be in Springfield, Ill. He got into a poker game and was out all night. At seven o'clock in the morning he returned to the hotel in broad daylight, very much the worse for wear. Seeing a barber shop open he decided to take a shave and have some hot cloths applied. While he was in the chair a prominent manufacturer came into the shop. He saw the young man, and remarked, 'I'm always glad to see a young fellow rise early in the morning. It's a good sign. An early start in the day is half the battle.' The young man and the old manufacturer had breakfast together. The young man made quite an impression. He was offered a job by his elderly friend, he accepted it, married his daughter, and is now the head of the business."

"Fie, fie," cried a Butcher Knife.
"Such a story will corrupt the morals of the entire hardware store."

Then, as the hands of the store clock pointed to twelve, all the old job lot of tools wished each other a Merry Christmas and hurried, helter-skelter, back to their drawer. After Christmas week the hardware merchant took stock, and as the tools were "guaranteed," he sent them back to their respective manufacturers for credit. When he sent the Pocket Knife back he wrote that his customer had told him he broke both blades whittling a nice, clear piece of pine. Of course the Knife knew better—he knew that his blades were broken trying to get the cork out of a bottle of beer. But then you know, goods that are "guaranteed" are guaranteed.

The old Axe went back because he had a "bad temper." The dealer wrote the manufacturer that the chips just flew out of his edge the first time he was used. The Axe, of course, couldn't say anything, but he knew that he had been left out in the woodshed on a cold, frosty night, and that the next morning the farmer came out and started chopping when his bit was brittle with frost. "Why," said the Axe to himself, "this old farmer didn't have sense enough to know that before using an axe in the wintertime it should have all the frost steamed out."

I guess, children, that you have had enough of this hardware story. But whenever you use a Hatchet or a Hammer or a Saw or a Pocket Knife, just remember that it is alive and thinks just as much as you do, only it lives and thinks differently.

Good Night. Merry Christmas.

THE SHEPHERDS WENT THEIR HASTY WAY

The shepherds went their hasty way,
And found the lowly stable-shed,
Where the virgin-mother lay;
And now they checked their eager tread,
For to the Babe that at her bosom clung,
A mother's song the virgin-mother sung.

They told her how a glorious light,
Streaming from a heavenly throng,
Around them shone, suspending night!
While sweeter than a mother's song,
Blest angels heralded the Saviour's birth,
Glory to God on high! and peace on earth!

She listened to the tale divine,
And closer still the Babe she prest;
And while she cried, "The Babe is mine!"
The milk rushed faster to her breast:
Joy rose within her like a summer's morn;
Peace, peace on earth! the Prince of Peace is born.

Thou mother of the Prince of Peace,
Poor, simple, and of low estate!
That strife should vanish, battle cease,
O why should this thy soul elate?
Sweet music's loudest note, the poet's story,—
Didst thou ne'er love to hear of fame and glory?

And is not War a youthful king,
A stately hero clad in mail?
Beneath his footsteps laurels spring;
Him earth's majestic monarchs hail
Their friend, their playmate! and his bold bright eye
Compels the maiden's love-confessing sigh.

The Gimlet

"Tell this in some more courtly scene,
To maids and youths in robes of state!
I am a woman poor and mean,
And therefore is my soul elate:
War is a ruffian all with guilt defiled,
That from the aged father tears his child.

"A murderous fiend by fiends adored,
He kills the sire and starves the son;
The husband kills and from her board
Steals all his widow's toil had won;
Plunders God's world of beauty; rends away
All safety from the night, all comfort from the day.

"Then wisely is my soul elate,
That strife should vanish, battle cease;
I'm poor and of a low estate,
The mother of the Prince of Peace.
Joy rises in me, like a summer's morn:
Peace, peace on earth! the Prince of Peace is born."

—Samuel Taylor Coleridge.

Dear to us are those who love us; the swift moments we spend with them are a compensation for a great deal of misery; they enlarge our life—but dearer are those who reject us as unworthy, for they add another life; they build a heaven before us, whereof we had not dreamed, and thereby supply to us new powers out of the recesses of the spirit, and urge us to new and unattempted performances.

—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

"HARDWARE"

NOT NEEDED

While a traveling man was waiting for an opportunity to show his samples to a merchant in a little backwoods town in Missouri, a customer came in and bought a couple of night shirts. Afterwards a long, lank lumberman, with his trousers stuffed in his boots, said to the merchant:

"What was them 'ere that feller bot?"

"Night shirts. Can I sell you one or two?"

"Naup, I reckon not," said the Missourian. "I don't set around much o' nights."—Lippincott's.

ABSOLUTE PROOF.

A man who had received a jury notice pleaded deafness as his excuse for not attending.

"I really am deaf," he said to the clerk who was enrolling the names.

"Prove it," said the clerk.

The man hesitated, then his face brightened as an organ commenced to play in the street outside.

"Can you hear that organ?" he said.

"Yes," replied the clerk.

"Well, I can't," replied the man triumphantly.

ONCE, BUT ENOUGH

A sweet young thing of eighteen who had not traveled much was riding on a railroad that was rather noted for its accidents.

"How deliciously dangerous," she thought. When the conductor came she said to him:

"How often do you kill a person on this road?"

The conductor smiled, and, as he clipped her ticket, he said:

"Just once, Miss."

COULDN'T GET AWAY

"I understand that, after waiting twenty years she married a struggling young man?"

"Yes, poor chap. He struggled the best he knew how, but she landed him."

YES, INDEED!

The days of "Cheap and Flimsy" goods are past. "Quality" is fast being recognized; it's the essence of economy.

You recognize Quality in buying dresses, suits, shoes, implements, etc.: you know it is the cheapest to pay more money for better goods—they wear better, look better and last longer.

Are you one of the many who overlook this "Point of Quality" when buying the most important article in your whole household—your cooking range; the main spring to Health, Happiness and Economy.

Do you realize that most everything that keeps you and your family alive, comes from your cooking range. The greatest outlay of money in your household is for food-stuffs and fuel, and there, in your kitchen, lies the central and controlling fact in household economy.

There is as much difference between cheap and quality ranges as there is between cotton and silk. Women who are now using or who have even examined the GREAT MAJESTIC RANGE, no longer believe "just any" range will do.

THE GREAT MAJESTIC, "THE RANGE WITH A REPUTATION," is the standard all over the world—it's built on honor, of malleable and charcoal iron. Malleable iron cannot break, charcoal iron resists rust 300% greater than steel. It's cold riveted throughout, practically air-tight—lined with pure asbestos board. It bakes perfect, heats abundance of water, quick and hot, uses very little fuel, is easy to keep clean, costs practically nothing for repairs and properly handled lasts a lifetime.

Be discriminating. Know why the MAJESTIC is so highly recommended by every user. Let the MAJESTIC DEALER in your town show you the range from top to bottom, inside and outside—he will gladly do so if you will call at his store.
